the international conventions dealing with maritime safety, the most important is the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS), which covers a wide range of measures designed to improve the safety of shipping. Substantial revisions to the fifth version of SOLAS came into force on 1 July 2002, with the new Regulations implemented under UK legislation by the Merchant Shipping (Safety of Navigation) Regulations 2002

The Law Library presents the complete text of the Long Range Identification and Tracking of Ships (US Coast Guard Regulation) (USCG) (2018 Edition). Updated as of May 29, 2018 This rule requires, consistent with international law, certain ships to report identifying and position data electronically. This rule implements an amendment to chapter V of the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS), regulation 19-1, and enables the Coast Guard to correlate Long Range Identification and Tracking (LRIT) data with data from other sources, detect anomalies, and heighten our overall Maritime Domain Awareness. This rule is consistent with the Coast Guard's strategic goals of maritime security and maritime safety, and the Department's strategic goals of awareness, prevention, protection, and response. This ebook contains: - The complete text of the Long Range Identification and Tracking of Ships (US Coast Guard Regulation) (USCG) (2018 Edition) - A dynamic table of content linking to each section - A table of contents in introduction presenting a general overview of the structure of proper psychological development that can be expressed in conversation and day to day activity. The manual presents a scientific analysis of the approaches to the training of formation and development of communicative competence of leading psychologists. Here is also expressed the author's approach to the acmeological training of the development of communicative competence of a manager. The manual will also be useful for those who have already become or will soon become a leader, and those who are seriously engaged in the training issues.
