Transformative Educational Leadership

Transformative leadership “begins with questions of justice and democracy; it critiques inequitable practices and offers the promise not only of greater individual achievement but of a better life lived in common with others” (Shields, 2010, p. 559). Transformation and change are not synonyms.

Transformative Leadership

Transformative educational leaders must be more concerned with learning than with testing, with the holistic development of their students than with school statistics, and with the good of their community — school, local, and even global — than with the celebration of individual exploits.
